First Make Your Own Choice of the Girl You Are Going to Marry—Then Find Out If She Has Good, Hard-Headed Horse Sense—It's Her Best Asset

A young man asks me if I will give him a few tips about how to pick out a wife. Well, son, when you select the woman with whom you expect to spend the next thirty or forty years use both your heart and your head, the while you keep your fingers crossed for luck. You will need them all and a kiss from your Guardian Angel thrown in for good measure, for marriage is a gamble that makes roulette and all other games of chance look like sure things.

Of course, every man's dream wife is a woman who both comes up to his ideal and lives his fancy her, also and alack, those paragons are as scarce as hen's teeth. If you must choose between a girl who is a conglomerate of all the virtues, but who makes you tired and one who has a thousand faults mixed up with a thousand thrills, take the thriller. Don't marry any woman who doesn't raise your temperature and set your pulses racing. Men need to be steady in love when they marry because the conditions of life constantly decrease their capital of romance and sentiment, so if they make the grade they must start out under full steam.

Don't let your mother, your sisters or your friends pick out your wife for you. Marriage is the most intensely personal thing on earth and husbands and wives rarely a matter of taste. Mother is perfectly sure that you would be happier if you married the nice little girl across the street who has a city fortune and thinks much good night's food and is kind to her mother, and that you would bring misery on yourself if you married that little flibbertigibbet who can't boil water without scorching it and who hasn't a penny to her name.

But if you let Mother dump her choice on you, you will be pitchforked, ing within a year. Marriage is for a long time and it seems longer if you have to spend it with a wife who gets on your nerves and bores you to tears.

Take as much time and give as much intelligence to selecting your wife as you would a new automobile. If you were buying a car you would consider first what kind of a car you needed. You wouldn't buy a sport roadster if you needed a truck in your business. You wouldn't buy a Delia Royce if all you could afford was a flivver. You would consider the upkeep. You wouldn't buy a car just because it had pretty upholstery, trinky gadgets, shiny new paint and streamlined effects. You would look at the engine and note how strongly it the car was built, and you would lay particular stress on the reliability of the manufacturer.

Well, use the same care in picking out your wife as you would in selecting your car. Don't marry a girl who is nothing but a living picture when what you need is a good working partner. Don't pick out a mother who will keep your nose to the grindstone as long as you live to pay her bills. Don't marry a girl who has nothing but a pretty face to recommend her. Don't marry a girl who is made of identical material and who will break down as soon as the strain of life comes upon her. Don't marry a girl who doesn't come of decent, honest, respectable people. The maker's name is as good a guarantee on a girl as it is on a car.

Pick out a girl who has good, hard, horse sense. That is about the most useful commodity in marriage and will go further than any other one thing toward making it a success. The woman who has that never makes the mistake essential for a wife who wants her hard-working, hard-driven husband doesn't spend his time making love to her and telling her how beautiful and wonderful she is. Nor does she develop into the hysterical nagger who considers herself a martyr because she has to keep house and bear children.

So look out for what is under the finger wave or any girl who has caught your eye. If there is plenty of gray matter there she will make a reasonable wife who will take marriage on the side, so to speak, and who will not expect too much of you.

Above all, pick out a cheerful, good-natured girl for a wife. When all is said your wife's disposition is going to make or mar your marriage. If you select one who is amiable and sweet and pleasant to live with, you will have the win of the sentiments, whose price was above rubies.

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

By Alicia Hart

©1933 BY NEA SERVICE INC.

Use this cream, powder, rouge and lipstick, remove for special parties, hand cream, moisture accessories and a protective foundation lotion are the absolute essentials that a college girl should take back to school with her. Suntan, the enlarged, special evening makeup and rush, are nice to have but lack of them won't make the average co-ed miserable. She probably would rather spend her spare cash on fine brushes by half, nails and tools, an extra bottle of nail polish and the like.

The little case of manicure implements ought to include cuticle cream, polish and oily remover, emery boards, orange sticks, nail whitener and a small bottle of olive oil in case the urge to have a hot oil manicure becomes too great to resist, the time being afternoon. Then girl who uses hand cream, diligently, keeps cuticle soft and pushed back is likely to have pretty hands when she is older.

Makeup kits are particularly satisfactory for one who has to share a room with another. Equipped with all the essentials, one of these takes up little space on a dresser and makes keeping a room in order decidedly easier. Besides if you room it in the top drawer, there's less chance of all and daddy using your makeup. This isn't a plea for less personality. Its chief is a bad idea, for reasons of health, to look of barrier cosmetics.

Girls at the MAJORITY of the so-called FASHION colleges eschew foundations, rouge and powder during class periods and wear only lipstick. A box of powder lasts a long time, but lipstick always are in demand.

Her hairbrush is the facilitious co-ed's best friend so far as the subject of beauty is concerned. If she uses it every night and sometimes wear a week, there's no doubt that she will have shiny, healthy, attractive tresses.

IMPEACHMENT OF FDR THREATENED

Made By Stanford Inventor When Informed He Will Be Prosecuted on NLRA Charges

STANFORD, Conn., July 30.—(AP)—Lester P. Barlow, Stanford inventor, declared he would be prosecuted on charges of violating the National Labor Relations Act, threatened today to summon a favorite inquiry and to circulate petitions asking impeachment of President Roosevelt.

Louis T. Catherman, assistant federal district attorney, announced that might be given prosecute Barlow, one time Commercial Realty of Miami Lang's "share the wealth" movement as a result of the inventor's refusal at a National Labor Relations Board hearing Barlow accused the board of radicalism, charged the proceedings were a "racket," and labeled Trial Examiner Paul Barlow to "tell the president of the United States for me to go to hell."

Catherman said Barlow would be prosecuted under a section of the act making it unlawful for any person to "willfully resist, prevent, impede or interfere" with the board or any of its agents in the performance of their duties. It provides maximum punishment of a $5000 fine and one year's imprisonment.

Barlow, inventor of a device much used by the U. S. during the World war, and claimant to numerous million dollars by the inventions, issued a statement saying he also would file charges against James A. Farley, postmaster general; Homer S. Cummings, attorney general, and "many others associated with the Democratic national political machine."

Two Charged With Plotting to Spread Disease

RICHMOND, Va., July 30.—(AP)—Two Frenchmen went on trial for their lives in Federal court today on charges of plotting to spread disease in enemy territory.

Generalissimo Francisco Franco, insurgent leader, charged they were actually in an international plot against epidemic. He announced he had furnished the League of Nations and all world capitals with damning information on the purported plot.

He charged that the scheme was conceived in London and involved Englishmen, Frenchmen and Spaniards, some in high positions.

The two on trial before a military court, Louis Chalaix and Jean Bagnaud, were arrested in Piantanetta. They were alleged to have smuggled disease germs across the border.

(A member of the French Chamber of Deputies whose name could be was announced by the insurgents as allegedly aiding in the plot, said the insurgents were a "pack of Nazi" had he had never heard of the two men on trial.)

Davis Cup Heads Back To America

Great Crowd Jams Station as U. S. Team Leaves London for Trip Home

LONDON, July 30.—The Davis cup went west today.

The tall, red-haired boy who won it, Donald Budge, reached it aboard the train at Waterloo station and started it back to its original home in the United States.

A crowd jammed the platform and Budge and his doubles partner, Gene Mako, held up the cup for the Dicks to see until they couldn't hold it up any longer.

Bryan (Bitsy) Grant, lost in the shuffle, inconspicuously took the train to be on his way leaving him back to his native Georgia.

"We're certainly been treated royally," he exclaimed, "but, boy! I'd certainly like to see Panchito climb Atlanta, again."

Budge, whose singles and doubles play was great, could be taking the famed Bowles trophy away from the British, was the real center of attraction.

Old ladies pressed through the crowd to kiss the enthusiastic Californian. Science gentlemen with wonderful whiskers shook hands and exclaimed "we never had a more worthy champion."

Budge patiently classified from this but promised everybody he said he'd be back next year to defend their here with Gene on Wimbledon's famed Center court.

The team is due to arrive in New York on the liner Manhattan August 4, and will go immediately to Rye, N. Y., for a tournament there.

Shrinking Man Regains Health

MINNEAPOLIS, July 30.—(AP)—Hans Nelson, who shrank ten inches in height in five years, today received a good operation with saving his face and putting him "on top of the world."

He's gaining strength, he said, calling "anything" taking automobile trips and enjoying life. He's pleased also to know his case has added others as afflicted.

Two years ago surgeons removed part of his protruding glands in an effort to stop the de-calcification of his bones that stunted his stature. He had been shrinking by 1½ years until he was a stooped man of five feet.

Nelson still is five feet tall, but said he was growing stronger "every day" and looking forward to the time when he will be even taller.

"As far as my life was concerned," he said, "it is pie now. I'm happy. I'm glad I was here. I made a try through, and I'm glad of it. This has been the accidentic summer since I have been sick."

Mauling By Lion Fatal to Rector

NEWCOMEN, England, July 30.—(AP)—Harold Davidson, the unfrocked rector of Stiffkey, died today of injuries received Wednesday when he was mauled by a lion. He had been delivering a speech from the lion's cage as part of his job as a showman.

Since he was convicted in 1932 of immorality by a church court and deprived of his ecclesiastical office, Davidson had used unorthodox methods of protest, such as "leaving suicide notes" and fasting for long periods.

His unusually charges were made by two waitresses.

WAGE BILL'S DEATH WILL END SESSION

Congressional Leaders Say Efforts to Enact Other Legislation Will Collapse

WASHINGTON, July 30.—(AP)—The date of congressional adjournment depended today on a powerful Senate movement to shelve the administration's wage and hour bill by sending it back to committee.

If the measure should be recommitted, veteran legislators said, efforts to enact other legislation would collapse and congress would adjourn pretty. Failure of the reconsultial proposal, they predicted, would work just the other way.

The line-up in the Senate appeared close, but friends of the bill said they believed they could beat the side-tracking motion. Reconsultial forces picked up strength yesterday, however, with the backing of some American Federation of Labor officials.

Democratic Leader Barkley said he hoped to pass the labor bill today and hold a Saturday session to debate the Wagner housing bill.

Then two measures and the new court bill were the key items on the administration's remaining legislative program. There were potent forces, however, urging enactment of other controversial measures, such as sugar quota legislation and the anti-lynching bill.

Administration leaders still were hoping also to squeeze through legislation to plug tax loopholes and to set up a crop insurance system for wheat.

Aside from the possibility of a sudden adjournment if the wage-hour bill should be sidetracked, speculation on an adjournment date centered on August 14 and August 21. House leaders were talking of the latter date, but there was a strong belief on both sides of the capitol that the end could be reached a week earlier.

The House, looking to the future, voted unanimously yesterday to have the war department compile a nationwide food control program.

Chairman Whittington (D., Miss.) of the House flood control committee said such a report would embody in one document all the information congress would need in order to legislate on the problem next session. The Senate has passed a somewhat similar bill.

A conference between senators filibuster-prodding states and opposing states and the state-land-use agriculture departments was called today, president Roosevelt suggested the groups get together because of differences over the advisability of restrictions on the sugar industry.
